Night Clubs in Yakima for Teens

By Misty Faucheux, eHow Contributor

Yakima, Washington, is located in Eastern Washington and is southeast of Mount Rainier. The total population for the city is just under 72,000 with an additional 50,000 in the surrounding suburbs. Much of this population is teens, and teenage night clubs are part of the entertainment in the city for this age group.

On Scene Productions at Glenwood Square

Glenwood Square near Glenwood Square Mall draws teens every day. But, on certain evenings, the area turns into a giant night club, specifically designed for the youth in the area. On Scene Productions (OSP) books bands from around the country to provide teens in the area some form of entertainment. Then, the company turns Glenwood Square into a huge night club.

OSP has connected with youth fans by having a MySpace page where fans can become part of the "OSP community" and provide input and suggestions.

Southeast Yakima Community Center

On certain evenings, the Southeast Yakima Community Center is transformed into a dance hall for the 18 and under crowd. It provides youth with a safe place away from school administrators to dance, meet new people and have fun away from their parents.

The Jade Room

The Jade Room is an all ages club located in old downtown Yakima. Bands from the area and around the country play at this club, but much of the music tends toward the heavy metal side; there are a few DJ club nights at the club.

There is a cover charge to enter the club, and teens under the age of 21 can stay
